DIRFloortime® is a Respectful, Joyful, and Powerful Evidence-based Approach

This is an introductory course that presents the DIR framework and practice of DIRFloortime. DIRFloortime supports and promotes the core foundation of human development that is essential for mind-body integration, social interactions, thinking and reasoning, and learning.

DIRFloortime is an evidence-based approach that has been shown to be particularly effective supporting children on the autism spectrum with self-regulation, relating, interacting, and communicating while decreasing caregiver stress and improving parent-child relationships. DIRFloortime can help parents connect more deeply with their children and effectively promote their development with love and joy.
